About the Foundation

The Stefan Batory Foundation, established by George Soros, an American financier and philanthropist, and a group of Polish opposition leaders of 1980's, is an independent, non-profit organization of a public benefit status registered by the District Court of Warsaw (Praga) on May 7, 1988. The mission of the Batory Foundation is to build an open, democratic society – a society of people aware of their rights and responsibilities, who take an active role in public life and are responsible for themselves and for their community.

Areas of activity

■ support to civic initiatives

We help independent non-governmental organizations which take up projects in areas where the role or the capacity of the state are limited, we make grants not only for individual projects but also for long term programs, capacity building and institutional strengthening: strategic planning, management enhancement, financial sustainability, we support community initiatives which increase public participation and create equal opportunities for the most vulnerable or disadvantaged social groups.

■ access to justice and social scrutiny

We support activities designed to provide all citizens with access to information and justice, we assist legal and civic education programs, disseminate legal expertise and methods of exercising scrutiny over public institutions, we advocate systems to control corruption and protect individuals' rights against government abuse.

■ international assistance and co-operation

We assist our neighbors in the East in the democratization process, facilitate experience sharing in the areas of political and social transformation, we implement projects aimed at building strong neighborly relations with the East and the West, contribute to the dialogue on the future of common Europe and advocate a greater role of civic initiatives in international relations and in the advancement of democratic principles and respect for human rights.

Our methods

The basic method of our operation involves making grants for projects and institutional support to the non-governmental organizations. We also initiate and carry out – alone or in partnership with other organizations – various undertakings: we host public debates on political, social and international problems, produce publications, conduct research and social campaigns, organize conferences, seminars and training workshops.

In our activity we observe principles of transparency, openness and accountability. Up-to-date information on our activities and grant-seeking opportunities is posted on our website www.batory.org.pl and on NGO portals. The decisions on grants distribution are made by the Foundation's Board with the help of committees of experts who assess grant applications and recommend projects for funding. Our finances are audited by external experts and the financial statements are published in the Annual Report together with the list of grants awarded and projects implemented during the year.

Foundation in 2006

In 2006, just like in previous years, we focused primarily on strengthening the role and activity of non-governmental organizations which we treat as an important element of a strong and vibrant civil society indispensable for the proper functioning of democracy. We put particular emphasis on developing the potential and increasing the efficiency of the organizations, especially those that represent public interests and propose systemic changes. Much in this respect was achieved thanks to the Third Sector Program, financed by the Trust for Civil Society in Central and Eastern Europe, we ran in 2002–2006. In the framework of this program we have been supporting activities aimed at creating friendly conditions for the growth of the non-profit sector, development of cooperation of organizations with the public and private sectors, and laying down fundamentals for financial stability of the civic society institutions. The program enabled the introduction of regular research of civil society and established mechanisms of monitoring legal regulations affecting non-profit sector. It contributed to the promotion of good practices in the field of cooperation between local governments and non-governmental organizations and facilitated creation of 15 regional and sectoral representations of the third sector that take action for the benefit of member organizations and their clients. It also enabled the development of two models of financing local initiatives: community foundations and local partnership groups (coalitions of business, public and community institutions). Over the period of three years, the network of 20 community foundations and 17 partnership groups raised nearly PLN 42 million for local activities. Thanks to the grants for institutional support and establishment of capital endowments offered as a part of the program 18 institutions of key importance for the non-profit sector in Poland embarked on the way to financial sustainability.

The special concern of the Foundation in 2006 was the further withdrawal of citizens from public life, the popular distrust in the democratic institutions reflected in the lowest ever turnout in Polish parliamentary and presidential elections in fall 2005 and the widespread conviction that an ordinary citizen cannot influence the decisions of the ruling elites. We tried to address these issues in several of our projects designed to increase civic participation in public life, involve civic society actors in shaping the governmental policies and make the authorities accountable before the citizens. This was the goal of our local election campaign Your vote, your choice, through which, together with 339 organizations from 224 townships, we tried to make voters interested in the issues affecting their communities and encourage them to make an informed choice of their representatives to local government positions. The same goal was served by the projects that monitored election promises and the local election campaign finances and by the grants we offered watchdog organizations to implement projects of monitoring and disseminating information on the planning, spending and accounting for public money. In another monitoring project launched in connection with local government elections, we tested independence and impartiality of public television's newscasts to make sure the materials do not favor any of the candidates. After the completion of the term of six judges of the Constitutional Tribunal, we launched a project of public scrutiny of candidates for judges to the Constitutional Tribunal, together with the Polish section of the International Commission of Jurists and the Helsinki Foundation for Human Rights. We continued the support for organizations that engage in activities aimed to increase citizens access to law and justice, both in terms of the provision of free-of-charge services for citizens (grants to Citizens' Advice Bureaus) and educational efforts targeting secondary schools students (Youth Civic Rights Academy).

Another problem that we addressed last year, of particular importance on the eve of the expected influx of immigrants of many races and religions after Poland joined the EU, concerned prevention of intolerance and resentment towards immigrants. As part of the newly created three-year Program for Tolerance financed by the Ford Foundation, we offered grants to civic organizations and local communities for initiatives that shaped the attitudes of openness toward racial, ethnic and religious differences and sought to challenge prejudices and stereotypes.

Thanks to the generosity of individual donors, including 1680 individuals who donated us 1% of their income tax for 2005, as well as commercial donors from Poland and abroad, we continued to help local organizations that run scholarship programs for children and youth from small towns and rural areas and implement integration projects for handicapped children. Additionally, in 2006, these organizations were offered grants for institutional development and capacity building.

In the area of international cooperation we engaged in initiatives aimed at strengthening pro-democratic tendencies in the countries of our eastern neighbors and on advocating for a common EU policy toward those countries based on the concept of a friendly border and good neighborhood. Such were the aims of the projects of experience sharing with Ukrainian centers of European information and representatives of Ukrainian public administration, a series of conferences, discussions and meetings in several capitals of Europe during which we presented recommendations and propositions for a common EU policy toward Belarus. We supported Belarusian and Ukrainian organizations that run small-grant competitions for grass-root initiatives, organize information and legal counseling for citizens, engage in protection and execution of individual rights, provide civic education of young people, set up local civic activity centers, undertake efforts to secure access to information, increase transparency of the government administration, contribute to the growth of philanthropy. We also continued the initiatives aimed at liberalization of the European Union visa policy toward citizens of Eastern Europe. We organized monitoring the European visa policies of selected EU countries and advocated for the changes of EU members' procedures and visa practices at conferences, meetings and seminars devoted to the presentations of the monitoring's results. Our efforts to strengthen democracy and the growth of civil society were supplemented by organization of recruitment of independent observers and the monitoring of elections in Belarus, Ukraine and Tajikistan. As part of the effort to support trans-border cooperation, we made grants to Polish organizations that implement cooperation projects with partners from Eastern European countries (East-East Program) and organizations that carry out trilateral projects with Germany, Ukraine, Belarus and the Kaliningrad District in Russia.

Concerned with the state of official relations between Poland and Russia and a significant drop in informal contacts and cooperation between the societies of both countries, we decided to initiate projects that might contribute to the enlivenment of interest in Russia in wider circles of Polish society helping to revert the threat of the return of previous-era bias and prejudice. To achieve this goal, we organized two international conferences: on modern Russia, with the participation of outstanding Russian and Western experts on Russian affairs, and on Russian-Ukrainian relations and their influence on the policy of Ukraine toward the EU, with the participation of politicians and experts from Russia, Poland and Ukraine. We organized also study visit for Russian non-governmental organizations interested in developing cooperation with Polish partners.

In 2006, as part of our grant-making activity, we made 325 grants for institutions and organizations, 42 individual and group travel grants for 154 people participating in projects abroad, and gave 6 awards – all totaling PLN 12,1 million. We spent PLN 3,7 million on our operational programs: for projects implemented by us alone or in cooperation with our partners. Moreover, in 2006, the following long-term projects were carried out by other organizations from grants we had made in the previous years:

- Fund for Women – a grant program for women’s initiatives, co-funded by the Ford Foundation, and handed over to the OSKa National Women’s Information Center www.oska.org.pl (funds in the amount of PLN 800 000 allocated for the years 2003–2006)
- Local History – a history competition for secondary school students managed by the Karta Centre Foundation (funds in the amount of PLN 760 000 allocated for the years 2003–2006)

The summary of our activities together with the full list of grants made in 2006 is included in the further sections of this publication.

Our donors

We could carry out our activity in 2005 thanks to grants and donations made by Polish and foreign private and public institutions, commercial organizations and individual donors, including taxpayers who donated us 1% of their personal income tax.

Majority of our programs were financed from the grant of the Open Society Institute, established by George Soros, American financier and philanthropist, the founder of a network of civic organizations active in more than 50 countries in Central and Eastern Europe, Asia, Africa, Latin America, and the United States. From the grant donated by Trust for Civil Society in Central and Eastern Europe we financed the four-year Third Sector Program concluded in 2006. From the Ford Foundation's funds we ran Citizens in Action and Education for Tolerance Programs. The Robert Bosch Foundation co-financed programs of trilateral cooperation: Polish-German-Belarusian, Russian, and Ukrainian. Our activities in the sphere of international cooperation were co-financed in 2006 by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, while the Program against Corruption was supported by the Embassy of the United States.

Our programs aimed to equalize educational opportunities of children and youth were financed from 1% personal income tax donations from individuals, and the donations of Agora Foundation, Commercial Union Poland insurance company, Nestle SA Poland, and the revenue from an endowed M Fund established by a Polish private donor as well as the donations from private individuals abroad (including Helen and Peter Maxwell and a private donor wishing to remain anonymous whose donation was used to establish the K Fund) who supported us through the Friends of Stefan Batory Foundation, the U.S., and Stefan Batory Trust, UK.

As in the previous years, we ran the Commercial Union Charity Fund, a donor-advised fund of an insurance company we have been co-operating since 1996. In 2006 the CU Fund supported projects indicated by the donor in the area of health care and education. Also, revenue from the investments of the endowed M Fund was distributed, in line with the Founder's will, to help disabled and ill children, as well as to support equal opportunities and health care projects. We continued to administer the Beata Pawlak Fund used, in line with the Founder's last will, to finance an annual prize for the best article on other cultures, religions and civilizations.

In 2006 we continued our efforts to build the endowment that will constitute the basis for financing our activity in years to come. Significant donations to our capital endowment were contributed by the Ford Foundation and the Charles Stuart Mott Foundation. The Mott Foundation and the Trust for Civil Society in Central and Eastern Europe supported our efforts to develop and expand our financial basis.

We thank all our donors from the bottom of our hearts! With your help we can help others!

We thank experts, consultants and volunteers who served us pro bono with their professional advice and aid, as well as companies that gave us in-kind contributions. We also want to express our gratitude to all those who helped us in the 1% of income tax campaign in year 2006, especially Antalis Poland for donating us paper for the production of promotional leaflets and Joanna Szymańska for cooperation and engagement in the preparation of the campaign.

We thank the following companies, institutions and individuals who supported our Your vote, your choice campaign aimed to encourage voters to take part in local elections: DDB Warsaw advertising agency for production of a TV spot of the get-out-the-vote campaign; TVN24, TVN, POLSAT and MTV stations for free-of-charge airing of the spot; Best-Marketing Promotion Agency for its distribution to 23 cinemas in Poland; Mateusz Zmyślony of the Eskadra agency for the idea and help in organization of an election street happening; Wojciech Albiński for developing the concept of a get-out-the-vote campaign in local communities; Rafał Szymczak of Profile agency for assistance in cooperation with the media; Robert Kawka for printing election stickers; the OZON agency for campaign banner design; Gazeta Wyborcza daily for promotion of the campaign; volunteers Łukasz Bertram, Paulina Chylińska, Rafał Krzemiński and Kacper Plawgo for cooperation in running and coordinating the campaign.

We thank associates and volunteers of the Anti-Corruption Program: Zbigniew Janas and attorney Maciej Łaszczuk for offering their cooperation, knowledge and experience in the implementation of Monitoring of legislative procedure project; judge Przemysław Szustakiewicz for eagerness to share knowledge and help in doubtful cases; Małgorzata Wąsek-Wiaderek for support in the field of human rights protection and the rulings of the European Court of Human Rights; Magdalena Chustecka for participation in one of the court proceedings monitored by the program; Bogna Baczyńska for engagement in monitoring of the penal proceedings in the case of inspectors of the State Trade Inspection accused of bribery; volunteers Karolina Skrzek and Piotr Zawieja for covering court proceedings against an individual accused of bribery, Ola Potrebka and Katarzyna Lesińska for continued help in legal counseling project, Marek Solon-Lipiński for his important contribution into the preparation of a report on monitoring of 2005 presidential election campaign finance.

The Batory Foundation Debates

The Batory Foundation Debates are an attempt at establishing an independent meeting and discussion forum for politicians, professionals, public intellectuals and journalists. The Foundation has long organized conferences and seminars on transition in Poland, international affairs, Poland's foreign policy and the situation in Central and Eastern Europe. Our goal is to initiate public discourse on subjects important to the future of our state and the region.

In 2006 we launched a cycle of debates on Polish liberal democracy. We continued also debates on Polish foreign policy.

Polish liberal democracy cycle

Power of the media, power over the media

April 13, 2006

Panelists: Kamil Durczok (journalist, former presenter of TV News), Robert Krasowski (journalist, editor-in-chief Dziennik Polska Europa Świat), prof. Andrzej Rzepiński (lawyer, Warsaw University, Helsinki Foundation for Human Rights), Jarosław Sellin (secretary of state, Ministry of Culture and National Heritage), Jacek Żakowski (columnist, Polityka weekly). Moderator: Krzysztof Skowroński (journalist, TVP Channel 1), Aleksander Smolar (President of Stefan Batory Foundation).

Do media in Poland perform a controlling role or do they mostly represent various political and economic interests, or even the interests of special branches? How much do they contribute to the strengthening of democracy and how much do they realize particular interests of their publishers or political powers behind them? To what extent do they represent real public interests and how do they create the reality that we live in? To what extent do they tame the populism of the Polish political scene and to what extent they contribute to its growth through increased tabloidization of the media and the shaping of the editorial policy to compete for the audiences and advertisers? These were the questions the invited guests tried to answer.

The debate was broadcast by the main channel of the public television TVP.

Constitution, law, justice

A lecture by Prof. Marek Safjan, chairman of the Constitutional Tribunal

May 16, 2006

In his lecture, Professor Safjan spoke of the weak legal and constitutional culture in Poland, the attitudes of the elites toward the constitution, the dispute over the constitutional judiciary, and the shortcomings of the public constitutional debate. In his view, the public debate is limited to stereotypes and brought down to slogans on building of the Fourth Republic and the introduction of the moral order, without engaging wider spheres of the society. There is no constitutional debate in Poland that would engage the society, nor is there a real battle for the change of the constitution. All we are dealing with are the arguments over the constitution in the closed circles of political elites, Safjan said. The debate held in this form loses from its sight the real problems that should be addressed first and become an axis of the debate over the shape of the state, such as: the form and role of the local government, the issue of the election laws, the system of the law, the scope, intensity and scale of state guarantees toward the citizen, the development of mechanisms setting out the relations between EU institutions, the methods of reforming the judiciary, the system and scope of guarantees of healthcare, the educational model in the universities. Before we begin talking about changes in the constitution, we should decide on what exactly needs to be changed in the state, Prof. Safjan argued. Only then should we decide if we need a new constitution and a reformed axiology to make those changes happen. In his opinion, most problems can be solved through the respect of the canons of good faith and good practices in the sphere of the constitutional culture instead of the changes to the constitution. Polish transcript of the lecture is available from www.batory.org.pl in the section Conferences and debates.

Justice versus the law

June 7, 2006

Panelists: Prof. Marian Filar (professor of law, Nicolaus Copernicus University, Toruń), Janusz Kochanowski (Ombudsman), Prof. Wojciech Sadurski (professor of law, Dean of Law Department, European University, Florence), Prof. Andrzej Siemaszko (professor of law, director of Institute of Justice), Prof. Andrzej Zoll (professor of law, Jagiellonian University, former Ombudsman). Moderator: Aleksander Smolar (President of Stefan Batory Foundation).

With the appointment of the cabinet of Kazimierz Marcinkiewicz of the conservative Law and Justice (PiS) party, the role and place of the law in the state became one of the fundamental topics of the public debate. A prominent role in the discussion has been taken by the problem of relations between the law and justice. A question arises whether the government's moves to bring the justice contradict the rules of law existing in the European system and to what extent the defense of the current law and procedures serves as an alibi for practices that contradict social perception of justice. Panelists, outstanding law professors, discussed the tension between justice and the law, the law as an instrument or limitation of governance, and situations when law leads to statutory lawlessness. They debated if the penal law and the anti-criminal policy might fail to address the social perception of justice and what is the role of the judge in a democratic state.

Whose Poland? What kind of Poland?

June 28, 2006

Panelists: Prof. Henryk Romański (director of Institute of Philosophy and Sociology, Polish Academy of Sciences), Dariusz Gawin (Institute of Philosophy and Sociology, Polish Academy of Sciences, deputy director of Museum of Warsaw Uprising), Prof. Mirosława Marody (social scientist, Institute of Sociology, Warsaw University), Prof. Karol Modzelewski (historian, Wrocław University), Prof. Jacek Rostowski (economist, Central European University, Budapest), Sławomir Sierakowski (social scientist, columnist, editor-in-chief of Krytyka Polityczna), Prof. Jerzy Szacki (sociologist, member of Polish Academy of Sciences), Prof. Piotr Wieczorek (professor of law, Warsaw University), Artur Wołek (political scientist, Nowy Sącz School of Business – National Louis University). Moderator: Aleksander Smolar (President of Stefan Batory Foundation).

The conference was an attempt to answer important questions pertaining to the situation in Poland after the presidential and parliamentary elections of 2005; a country politically dominated by the Law and Justice (PiS) and, what was difficult to imagine just a year earlier, governed by a coalition of PiS with the League of Polish Families (LPR) and Self-Defense (Samoobrona). Invited guests focused on the substance of the changes that are taking place and on the question of what kind of a political community and a system of institutions is emerging. Whose political, social and economic interests are served by the current government? How the current order in the country corresponds with the goals and experiences of Poland after 1989 and the ideals of social forces that led the transformation? A selection of materials from the debate was published in a book. It is also available in the electronic form from www.batory.org.pl

Currency and democracy. A lecture by Prof. Leszek Balcerowicz

June 29, 2006

In his lecture, Prof. Balcerowicz spoke of relations between currency, democracy and the rule of the law, as well as of the limitations a good currency imposes on social freedom. The fact of the exchangeability or the lack of exchangeability of the currency has a political impact, said Prof. Balcerowicz. An exchangeable currency reduces the control of politicians over people. But there is also a problem of the value of currency, whether the currency keeps its value over time or is damaged because of excessive inflation. If the currency is being damaged, people pay an inflationary tax. One of the measures of the rule of the law is the extent to which those in power can impose this worst kind of taxation – the inflationary tax, without people's consent or without the consent of their representation. According to the lecturer, the protection of the stability of a modern currency requires: first, adoption of a strong external currency (like the dollar or the euro) and second, introduction of a common currency that gives reasons to believe it will be stable. The euro is such a currency for Poland, Balcerowicz said. A third condition is to have an independent central bank as an independent and professional guardian of the stability of the currency. The preservation of factual independence of the central bank is, with the assumption of the professional conducts of the bank, a guarantee of the protection of people from damages to the currency inflicted by politicians.

A cycle of debates *Foreign policy

Polish wars. Iraq, Afghanistan...

December 4, 2006

Panelists: Stanisław Koziej (general, former Deputy Minister of Defense), Jan Rokita (MP), Radosław Sikorski (Minister of Defense), Adam Daniel Rotfeld (former Minister of Foreign Affairs), Jerzy Szmajdziński (MP, former Minister of Defense). Moderator: Aleksander Smolar (President of Stefan Batory Foundation).

The subject of the debate was the strategic, political and moral aspects of Poland's military involvement around the world, particularly in Iraq and Afghanistan. Panelists discussed how Poland's engagement complies with the long-term strategy of the Polish presence in Europe and the world. How decisions to send soldiers abroad correspond with Poland's vision of European and Euroatlantic integration and how they comply with the visions of a safer world that respects human rights and evolves in the direction of democratic form of organization of public life? What must be done to ensure democratic control over decisions, the process and forms of engagement outside the country? What is the current status of legitimacy of foreign military operations that were not endorsed by the Security Council of the United Nations (Iraq)?

Civil Society Program

The aim of this program is to increase citizens' participation in public life, and to enhance the role and efficiency of civic institutions. We help organizations that contribute to the growth of community initiatives. We encourage them to cooperate with one another as well as with other social partners: local government, the business community, volunteers, and participate in creating social policy and strategy of development of Poland. We try to promote positive models of civic activity and the principles of public scrutiny over both public institutions and public benefit organizations.

In 2006 we carried out the following projects:

Institutional grants

In 2006, we addressed institutional grants to organizations that run local scholarship funds in the framework of our Equal Opportunity Program. Organizations that had been given institutional support in 2004–2005 were excluded from the grant competition. In the effect, 27 organizations were invited to apply. Each of them could apply for a three-year grant up to PLN 40 000. The grant funds could be used to cover operating costs, purchase of equipment, small investments, institutional development and the capacity building (training for workers and volunteers), planning and evaluation, improvement of financial management, promotion and fundraising.

Forge of love

Caritas of the Gniezno Archdiocese is the first charitable NGO in the country to be given the ISO 9001:2000 certificate for quality management by the International Organization for Standardization. This could have happened only because of the grant of PLN 27 000 Caritas received from the Stefan Batory Foundation in the framework of the Grants for institutional development of NGOs program. Rev. Jacek Dziel, the director of Caritas, accepted the ISO certificate at a special gala at the Gniezno theater.

– Thanks to the quality certificate we will be able to apply for grants from the European Union, and those people Caritas cares for in its charity centers and people in need who come to us for support will be able to get professional assistance – Rev. Jacek Dziel said.

Tygodnik Nowy Ziemia Pilska, Pila, April 11, 2006

Eventually, in 2006 we made 28 institutional grants of a total volume PLN 1 104 980. 25 of them were awarded to organizations that have cooperated with us in the Equal Opportunities – Local Scholarship Program and 3 to other associations: Gaja Ecological and Cultural Club Association, Seed Cultural and Ecological Association, and Legal Intervention Association.

Watchdog organizations. Social responsibility in the public life

In 2006, we organized the third edition of the grant competition for watchdog organizations. This time we supported projects related to the monitoring and publishing of information on planning, spending and accounting for public money. Organizations could apply for grants of up to PLN 40 000 for such activities as the development of systems of search and dissemination of information on planning, spending and accounting for public money, educational projects on the public finance management, development of financial monitoring tools and the usage of the available legal instruments in the process of monitoring the management of public funds, as well as advocacy efforts focused on the change of negative practices in the field of public funds management. We received 29 grant applications, 19 of them were awarded grants.

Is it forbidden to criticize the councilors?

Puszczykowo Kurier, free of charge a monthly independent from the local government, has been circulated in Puszczykowo for the past few years with the print run of 3 000 copies. It is hard to get money for the production, but recently the title received a boost from the Batory Foundation: its project Through transparency to democracy was one of the winners of the competition for watchdog organizations.

– It all began with an article of the Poznan edition of Gazeta Wyborcza, in which we published our opinion on the work of Poznan councilors. It was subjective, often critical, and dealt more with the quality of their work than with the time they spend in sittings. We thought in our editorial team it was an excellent idea. We've also received phone calls from Puszczykowo residents encouraging us to do with our 15 councilors what Gazeta Wyborcza did in Poznan – explains Gabriela Ozorowska. Together with the editor-in-chief Zofia Skibińska, medical doctor by profession, they got to work. They first asked councilors for their own evaluation of their work. When seven replied, it became clear the evaluation had to be produced by the journalists. – I went to all sessions and most of committee sittings, so our opinions were based on direct observation – Skibińska says. Notes on how some councilors do nothing or care more of their family shop than work in the local government or fail to take part in discussions hurt the feelings of a group of councilors who run in the Sunday elections on the ballots of the Puszczykowo committee and Active and Sportly committees. Both committees sued Puszczykowo Kurier in the fast-track 24-hour court mode. For what they saw as slander, the committees demanded a gag order for the title, a correction and PLN 10 000 to be paid for the Malan Aid House in Puszczykowo.

On October 31, the district court for Poznan dismissed both claims. Judge Katarzyna Jelewska-Sterczala wrote in the ruling: '[...] every voter has the right to express his opinions if he is disappointed with the work of any councilor, to say that he hoped for greater activity and achievements. It is in no way tantamount with the publication of untrue information [...] described in the electoral ordinance.'

Gazeta Wyborcza Poznan, Poznan, October 10–12, 2006

As a part of our support to the initiatives of the social control of public institutions we made also 4 grants for: monitoring the work of the special parliamentary investigative committee on the banking sector, development of a transparent system of publicly available information on persons serving in elective public posts, monitoring of the debate over the institutional reform of the European Union and the future of its constitutional treaty and monitoring of the work of educational authorities. Altogether, in the year 2006, we supported 23 monitoring projects of a total volume PLN 976 420.

In June 2006 we organized the conference Budget Watchdogs. How citizens can control public funds with the participation of representatives of three leading American organizations engaged in budget watch activities. Nick Johnson of the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities, Lauren Coletta of the Common Cause Educational Fund, and Noah Berger of the Massachusetts Budget and Policy Center presented various aspects and types of budget watch activities carried out by organizations in the United States. The conference was followed by the workshops conducted by American specialists during which the participants were shown practical examples of budget watch activities, learnt how to prepare the strategy of such actions and how such projects are financed in the U.S. as well as how to build coalitions and mobilize broad support for advocacy efforts for the change of legal regulations.

Your vote, your choice

The goal of the project we have been running since 2002 is to stimulate interest of citizens in the matters related to their local communities and to reinforce the feeling of common responsibility of the electorate and the elected for the decisions made on a voting day. In 2006 we completed the first stage of the project, which was to monitor the promises made before local government elections by candidates for city mayors in 2002. In October, we published an online Report on the realization of promises 2002 and disseminated the results of the monitoring activity in the media before the local election to provide the voters with the information on the actions taken by their local authorities before the new local government ballot.

In April 2006, in the preparation to the new local elections, together with the School of Leaders Association, we launched a public campaign aimed to raise the electorate's interest in the problems of their community and prepare the voters to the conscious act of casting a ballot. The action raised considerable interest in the NGO community: 339 non-profits from 224 places all over Poland joined the campaign, including associations, foundations, student organizations, economic chambers, and industry organizations. Their task was to prepare the inventory of local problems, organize election debates with the participation of the residents and candidates for mayors, and prepare local get-out-the-vote campaigns. Participating organization were offered technical support including a cycle of information and training meetings organized in various regions for a total of 330 people, the individual experts' consultations and counsel and auxiliary and promotional materials. The campaign Internet site www.maszglos.pl was launched, serving as a platform for the exchange of information and experiences of campaign's participants.

Between October and November 12, 137 debates were organized locally with candidates for voivots of communes and city mayors and local residents. In most cases, these were the first public debates organized in the community. In October the Foundation launched a national get-out-the-vote campaign. It was carried out locally in 246 townships by the organizations participating in the project and by a group of 200 secondary school students – participants of Youth votes project of Center for Citizenship Education. The get-out-the-vote campaign was accompanied by a nationwide promotional action that included: a television spot prepared by the agency DDB Warsaw, aired free of charge by 13 TV channels including Polsat, TVN and MTV, and also shown in 23 movie theaters throughout Poland; a radio spot aired free of charge by 40 national, regional and local radiostations; a get-out-the-vote sticker art competition organized together with the daily Gazeta Wyborcza, and a street happening in Warsaw, during which volunteers dressed as Polish kings distributed paper crowns as a symbol of authority encouraging passers-by to vote.

The action was summed up at a meeting in Warsaw on November 9, accompanied by the debate Do people have faith in their representatives? with the participation of Radosław Markowski (Political Sciences Institute of the Polish Academy of Sciences), Prof. Mirosława Marody (Social Studies Institute of the Warsaw University), Aleksander Smolar (President of the Batory Foundation), and Artur Wołek (Nowy Sącz School of Business – National Louis University).

The action's partners included: Polish Donors Forum, National Federation of Non-Governmental Organizations, Polish Green Network, SPLOT Network of Information and Support for Non-Governmental Organizations, Association for the Forum of Non-Governmental Initiatives, Working Community of Associations of Social Organizations, Union of Citizens Advice Bureaus. The media patronage was given by Gazeta Wyborcza, Polityka weekly, Polish Press Agency, Polish Public Radio, Association of Local Newspapers, regional network of public television, portals: www.ngo.pl and www.opoka.org.pl

Pre-election monitoring of the public TV news programs

From October 16, 2006, we ran a pilot project of the monitoring of the news programming of the public television (TVP) before local government elections. The monitoring covered the main editions of the news shows Wiadomości (TVP1, 19:30) and Panorama (TVP2, 22:30) as well as local news shows of TVP3 aired at 18:00 in five cities: Białystok, Gdańsk, Cracow, Szczecin, and Warsaw. Each show was rated by three observers, with the average of the rates becoming the final score. The observers recorded the duration of the election coverage, its placement in the program, the number and duration of quotes from candidates per main political parties. They also similarly rated other election material that in their view influenced voter decisions. In the qualitative observation, they rated editorial material, taking into consideration the tone, level of detail, comprehension, balance, topicality and bias. The scheme of observation was based on the experiences of international organizations that monitor elections: Council of Europe, European Union, Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe described in textbooks for NGOs: Monitoring Election Campaign Finance published in 2005 by the Open Society Institute and Media Monitoring to Promote Democratic Elections published by American National Democratic Institute in 2002.

The project took place between October 16 and the election blackout on November 12, 2006 and between the first and second round of voting on November 26 – in places where the second round was organized.

The Beata Pawlak Award

The Beata Pawlak Award was established pursuant to the last will of Beata Pawlak, a Polish journalist killed on October 12, 2002 in a terrorist attack on the Indonesian island of Bali. It is awarded annually for an article or series of articles on foreign cultures, religions and civilizations. The prize is financed from the Fund named after the journalist, administered by the Foundation.

In 2006 the Beata Pawlak Award was given to Beata Pawlikowska for a book: A Blondie in Cuba. On the Trail of Truth and Ernesto Che Guevara (National Geographic, 2006) and Paweł Smoleński for Israel Doesn't Fly Anymore (Czarne Publishing House, 2006). This time the awards were financed by ZNAK Publishing Office. On October 17, in the Batory Foundation's seat, an award ceremony took place accompanied by a discussion: Conflict of Civilizations or Clash of Ignorants? The End of Domination of the West? with participation of Krzysztof Iszkowski (Dziennik. Polska-Europa-Świat), Adam Leszczyński (Gazeta Wyborcza daily), Adam Szostkiewicz (Polityka weekly) and Joanna Tokarska-Bakir (Institute of Applied Social Sciences Warsaw University) and an exhibition of photos by Tomasz Mazur, Indian Mosaic.

Program was financed from a grant by the Open Society Institute

Third Sector Program

The program was carried out by the Foundation in years 2003–2006. It constituted a larger project, initiated and funded by the Trust for Civil Society in Central and Eastern Europe established by a consortium of six American foundations that had been active in this region, with an aim to support the process of developing and stabilizing the civil society in 7 Central and Eastern European countries: Bulgaria, the Czech Republic, Poland, Romania, Slovenia, Slovakia, and Hungary. The aim of the program was to improve the overall operations of the non-profit sector in Poland by creating a favorable legal and fiscal environment for organizations' growth, providing assistance in building foundations of their financial stability, and enhancing cooperation among organizations as well as their cooperation with other sectors. The program was carried out in a framework of four modules, three of them were run in partnership with selected organizations, fourth module was organized in the formula of an open competition.

Favorable Environment for Non-Governmental Organizations' Growth

Partner organizations: Institute of Public Affairs, Klon/Jawor Association, Working Community of Associations of Social Organizations (WRZOS)

Activities under this module were conducted by our partners during three years (November 2003 – October 2006) and served the following program objectives: create a mechanism of acquiring and disseminating knowledge concerning the third sector, analyze its condition and indicate directions for its development, increase the influence of organizations on legislation concerning their activity.

During that time the Klon/Jawor Association conducted a series of research, including: two surveys on the quality of the third sector (2004 and 2004), three surveys on volunteering, individual philanthropy and the 1% income tax designation (2003, 2004 and 2005); two surveys on relationships between national and regional government (2004 and 2006). The Klon/Jawor participated also in the Civil Society Index international research program coordinated by CIVICUS and implemented in 50 countries (the CSI program, based on a single methodology is primarily designed to collect and compile data to facilitate global comparisons and reviews of the quality of civil society). Research findings were presented in a series of reports and thematic briefs, i.a. in It's Worth Knowing More series of brochures and in an NGO monthly gazeta.ngo.pl. There were also referred to in other studies and articles regarding the current status of the third sector and presented in NGO-related events. Moreover, a handbook ABC of the Third Sector was published, which offers basic theoretical and practical information about non-governmental organizations (2004), two special editions of gazeta.ngo.pl – resume (2005 and 2006) featuring a summary of major developments in the previous year and an anthology The Third Sector for Advanced Readers.

The Institute of Public Affairs developed and deployed a system of monitoring legislation affecting NGOs (propositions of amendments to existing laws and new bills) and the practical implementation of laws and regulations. The monitoring information was distributed through e-bulletins to 258 subscribers. It also appeared on the Institute website and on NGO portal (www.ngo.pl) in the form of short news articles and analytical papers. Parallel to the monitoring system, a status report was developed on the legal and regulatory environment of the third sector; the report is regularly updated and the latest version reflects the legal status as of late July 2006. The broad scope of reviewed acts and legislative works gives a better insight into a legal environment for civil society activity as well as plays an 'early warning' role and allows to react immediately to unfavorable changes.

The Institute of Public Affairs made an attempt to litigate with the aim of changing the case law and law enforcement. The case regarded a foundation from Lower Silesia, which was refused the right to participate in the administrative court proceedings with a formal status of a social organization (a 'social organization' is entitled to act as one of the trial's sides). The Supreme Administrative Court explicitly stated that foundations should be regarded as social organizations, and thus have right to participate in administrative court proceedings. The litigation conducted by the Institute of Public Affairs supports the line of future judicial decisions, set in the above mentioned resolution.

Another task undertaken by Institute of Public Affairs was to identify issues of key importance for the development of the third sector and make them a subject of experts' opinion as well as public debate. This part of the project relied on the monitoring of legislation and on research conducted by Klon/Jawor. Relevant issues were studied in-depth and opinion was sought from academics, lawyers, experienced NGO leaders and competent national and local government officials. A total of 41 opinions were developed (of which 10 were developed by international experts). They analyzed such problems as: government policy towards the third sector and subsidiarity principle in social services, social economy, NGO relations with local government and different legal and tax issues. Opinions were discussed during 19 seminars attended by a total of 500 individuals and published on the website and in The Third Sector quarterly magazine. The seminars provided a meeting forum for NGO leaders, researchers and experts from Poland and abroad. They discussed and shared expertise on issues and recommendations based on above opinions, thus building an expert support framework for the third sector. The expert support framework for the non-governmental sector was also formed around The Third Sector quarterly magazine that discussed current status and future potential of civil society in Poland. Each issue of the quarterly had a monographic character focused on one selected theme. Seven issues of the magazine published during the project duration tackled the following topics: taxation, social economy, relations with public administration, employment in the third sector, perception of NGOs, advocacy and lobbying, NGO financial planning. The eighth issue came out in December 2006 and provided a summary of the whole project.

Working Community of Social Welfare Organizations WRZOS, a third partner organization, which joined the program in 2005, was implementing two advocacy projects that helped to test a mechanism of consulting NGOs sector position towards legal regulations that affected their activity, and then advocating for necessary changes. First project focused on selected problems related to VAT regulations and allowed to identify five concrete amendments, which were presented to the Ministry of Finance and to the Council of Public Benefit Activity. Second project focused on consulting and advocating for changes that should be introduced to the Law on Public Benefit Activity and Voluntarism. A list of propositions of 8 amendments to the law was prepared and consulted within NGO community. Some of the problems identified in the consultation process were clarified in the amendments to the Law on Public Benefit Activity and Voluntarism prepared in 2006.

In 2006 Klon/Jawor received a grant for organizing the data accumulated during the research and setting up a system of knowledge and information management that would allow more open access to all these resources. The Institute of Public Affairs was awarded a grant for continuation of monitoring of legal regulations affecting third sector functioning.

Partnership for the Third Sector

Partner organizations: Foundation in Support of Local Democracy (FSLD) and SPLOT Network of Information and Support for Non-Governmental Organizations

The activities undertaken within this module were conducted during two years (in October 2003 – September 2005). They were aimed at making the NGO community more conscious of opportunities and challenges connected with EU accession and mobilizing NGO community to joint actions targeted at reinforcing cooperation among NGOs and establishing partnership-based relations between the civil society and public sectors.

Within this module we cooperated with two network organizations which have branches in all regions of Poland: Foundation in Support of Local Democracy (FSLD), which deals mainly with support of local governments, and SPLOT, one of the oldest NGO support organizations. Activities carried out by our partners were primarily centered around provisions of the Law on Public Benefit Activity, as well as opportunities and challenges connected with EU accession and structural funds. Thanks to simultaneous and coordinated wide scale activities, conducted by both of our partners, we were able to reach over 12 000 people who participated in different events, and further at least 30 000 people who benefited from information and consultations provided through direct contacts, websites and publications.

Both partner organizations provided regular trainings, information and consultation services on the Law on Public Benefit Activity and Voluntarism and structural funds to NGOs practically in all regions of Poland. 16 Regional Conferences, 16 Regional Fora of Non-governmental Initiatives and 88 specialized workshops and seminars were organized with participation of 7 000 people (one of the workshops, aimed at strengthening NGOs skill in scrutinizing public institutions, was conducted by Helsinki Foundation for Human Rights). Information and consultation were available in all SPLOT locations and FSLD opened special consultation centers in 5 locations (in total 26 600 information and consultations were imparted). In addition, 13 regional NGO portals were launched with more than 1 300 news published during project's implementation and 240 000 portals' visitors registered. FSLD published and distributed 2 editions of guide books explaining the provisions of the new Law on Public Benefit Activity (one designed for local government, the other for NGOs) in total circulation of 3 000 copies. SPLOT published and distributed 5 brochures in total circulation of 22 000. Publications and brochures were also available on Internet.

Both partners using different approaches and methodologies moderated processes of developing programs of cooperation between local authorities and NGOs. The reason was that although the Law on Public Benefit Activity obliges local government sets formal regulations of cooperation with NGOs, it does not specify any detailed guidelines for this document. Such processes were initiated in 101 locations in 15 regions with participation of more than 4 500 representatives of local authorities and NGOs who attended 292 meetings and workshops. As a result 84 resolutions on program of cooperation were developed, out of which 74 were passed by local authorities.

Both partners were involved in monitoring processes of setting up Regional Steering and Monitoring Committees responsible for allocating and monitoring structural funds. In 15 regions there were set NGO coalitions responsible for contacts with NGO members of the Committees (in 1 region – SubCarpathian - no coalition was set up due to the lack of interest among NGOs). Moreover, FSLD organized meetings of NGOs representatives at the Committees with an aim to improve their operations and facilitate sharing of information and experience. The meetings demonstrated that the members were unclear as to the role and scope of their responsibility and the committees worked according to very different standards. For this reason, in 2006, FSLD continued organization of the meetings and prepared a draft proposition of procedures of appointing NGO representatives to committees for a new programming period. The new procedures were consulted with committee members and other representatives of NGO sector. The result of consultations was submitted to the Ministry of Regional Development responsible for the overall management of structural funds.

SPLIT undertook a task to initiate and facilitate processes of founding new regional and local NGO representations. Development of regional representations was organized around a cascade process of forming NGO councils on different levels (from municipal councils – through county councils – to district/regional representation). The process of building local representations targeted organizations dealing with different social issues such as unemployment, education, local development, women issues, social welfare, addictions, palliative care etc. To avoid risk of stimulating false cooperation each representation had to undertake a concrete task – develop common standards of services provided. As a result 3 regional representations (in Varmia and Mazury, Pomerania and Lower Silesia) and 12 branch coalitions with 740 member organizations were set up. The regional representation established in Varmia and Mazury region succeeded in the development of a document regulating cooperation between three sectors (based on the British Compact model). The agreement signed by representatives of regional authorities, NGOs and businesses is a unique initiative, worth duplicating in other regions. Moreover SPLIT published two handbooks on forming regional three-sectors agreements and developing common standards of services provided by NGOs.

New Models of Funding Civic Initiatives

Partner organizations: Academy for the Development of Philanthropy in Poland and Polish Environmental Partnership Foundation

Both of our partner organizations during three years (May 2003 – July 2006) carried out activities targeted at developing and strengthening two models of funding civic initiatives: community foundations – local non-governmental organizations which raise money in their communities to fund local initiatives while building an endowment to ensure their long term grant making capability; and partnership groups – coalitions of NGOs, local enterprises and public institutions (local governments, cultural centers, museums, nature reserves, etc.) for development of regions with common traditions, similar economic and social conditions.

The support offered by our partners included: grants, trainings, consultancy and various forms of experience sharing. In the effect, the number of community foundations expanded from 12 to 20 and partnership groups from 12 to 17. Both community foundations and partnership groups developed network structures that enable them to learn from each other's experience, undertake joint actions and maintain high standards of grant making and partnership. And both groups proved their efficiency in engaging different actors into local community life. This was reflected i.a. in the amounts of funds they raised: Academy for the Development of Philanthropy in Poland supported community foundations with grants of a total value PLN 3,8 million (including PLN 0,8 million from the Third Sector Program), community foundations raised from other source PLN 10 million distributing in their communities 1059 grants and 2536 scholarships. Polish Environmental Partnership Foundation made grants of PLN 1 million value (PLN 0,8 million from the Third Sector Program) and partnership groups raised PLN 27 million from other sources and implemented dozens projects for sustainable development.

Both organizations summarized the experience gained during the project in comprehensive resource materials. Academy published four manuals on the functioning of local organizations and the Trainer Guide. Environmental Partnership Foundation developed 6 training modules on theoretical and practical aspects of Partners Groups' development and operation and published two editions of a manual Partnership Groups, From Idea to Collaboration.

Additionally, Academy was engaged in promotion of individual and corporate philanthropy. There were two national campaigns aimed at promoting individual philanthropy and three editions of the Philanthropist of the Year contest aimed at promoting the concept of corporate social responsibility.

Moreover, 19 meetings were held to present the concept of corporate social responsibility. They were attended by a total of 995 individuals from business circles. Two publications were issued: 500 Managers and Responsible Business. Knowledge, Attitudes, Practice and Corporate Relations with NGOs – Legal Forms.

Institutional Development of Non-Governmental Organizations

This module was the only one organized in the formula of an open competition addressed to organizations which play an important role in Polish civil society and are ready to work toward long-term operating strategies for the future. Apart from grants we offered our grantees additional support in form of organizational audits and participation in the joint investment initiative.

An open call for proposals was announced in 2003. Organizations – upon having fulfilled certain formal criteria – could apply either for a seed endowment grant (up to PLN 1,2 million) or for an institutional development grant (up to PLN 0,4 million) designated for such long-term investment in organizational development like e.g. human resource development, purchase of equipment and premises, fundraising campaign, preparation of PR strategy, establishment of a reserve fund etc. In total 86 organizations applied and 18 were awarded with grants: six of them received seed endowment grant and twelve – institutional development grants.

In 2006, organizations which used the grants to set up endowment or reserve funds and proved their skills in strategic planning and implementation were invited to apply for supplementary grants. In addition, the newly established Partnership Fund Foundation, the grant-making arm of the Partnership for Environment Foundation was also invited to apply. Consequently, 10 organizations received supplementary grants.

All grantees were offered an opportunity to get a micro-grant for organizational audit based on Non-profit Index methodology, developed by a consulting firm Consulting Society Ryszard Stocki. Non-profit Index covers 4 main areas: human resource development, management (strategic, marketing, project management), fundraising and financial management, social outreach. In 2005, 16 organizations received micro-grants for audits, and 13 of them received micro-grants for second round of audit in 2006.

In 2006, a group of organizations interested in pooling resources for joint investment decided to choose an offer by the Fund Management Corporation Opera TFI which designed a special investment tool for NGOs – the Opera NGO Special Open-Ended Investment Fund. The NGO Fund was registered in February 2006 with 18 organizations joining it with total amount of PLN 13,46 million. In 2006, the income on investment was 28,41%.

Program was financed from a grant by the Trust for Civil Society in Central and Eastern Europe and Stefan Batory Foundation's sources.

Equal Opportunities Program

The program assists local organizations working to enhance access to education for young people from small towns and impoverished communities, as well as those striving to counteract social exclusion of physically and mentally disabled children by providing them with education and personal development opportunities.

Local Scholarship Programs

The project, carried on from 2000, aims at assisting the establishment of an alternative scholarships system for youth from low-income families based on local resources and activity. In its framework, we support local NGOs which run youth scholarship programs in their areas with the support of local government and local businesses. We offer organizations willing to run scholarship programs technical assistance in establishing and operating scholarship funds, building local coalitions, fund raising and management, cooperation with the media. The local organizations raise money for scholarship grants from local businesses, individual donors and local governments. Once a year, the organizations receive matching grants to supplement monies they have raised locally. Local scholarship programs run by the organizations operate on the basis of their own charters, drawn up by special scholarship committees. The scholarships awarded by them, varying between PLN 50 and 250 per month, are used to purchase textbooks and learning aids, to pay for lodging, extra courses, commuting to school, etc. The decision to award a scholarship is usually based on the applicant's school record and the financial standing of her/his family, sometimes also involvement in the work for community and achievements in other non-academic pursuits.

In September 2006, thanks to the cooperation with Nestlé Poland two new organizations joined the project from places where Nestle has its locations. These were: Education for Future Association from Namysłów and Students Sport Club Dąbrówka-Kargowa from Kargowa. Scholarship grants made by these organization in the past year were financed exclusively from Nestle donation.

Talent for Talent

Gifted children are found everywhere – in big cities and in remote provincial regions. But those who live in the province are underprivileged – poverty, distance to the library or a good school. Foundation Family in Sławno is trying to give equal opportunities. It joined the Batory Foundation Equal Opportunity – Local Scholarship Program running its own scholarship program Talent for Talent. In order to get a scholarship young people must meet four conditions: good school grades, an outstanding record in a given field (sport, culture, aptitude competitions), low income in the family, and work for others. It is important because such work teaches responsibility and engages people in the work for those in need. – A scholarship is not a handout – said the mother of Patrycja, one of the scholarship recipients. – The children work very hard for the money through social work, education, and participation in competitions.

Głós Pomorza, Koszalin, March 3–5, 2006

In 2006, the project involved 38 organizations from 16 provinces. They raised PLN 890 696 in their communities. This amount increased by grants awarded by the Stefan Batory Foundation from donations by companies, institutions and private donors in the total amount of PLN 636 000 supported 1482 monthly scholarships for children and youth in the school year 2006/2007.

Rainbow Academy

This project targets organizations that operate in small towns and rural areas and engage in activities to assist mentally and physically disabled children. The ultimate purpose is to improve the children's opportunities for education, and to overcome their social exclusion. We offer these organizations grants for activities that make it easier for disabled children to acquire knowledge and skills, enable them to participate in cultural and artistic events, and contribute to integration with their peers and community

In 2006, we made grants to NGOs conducting therapeutic and educational activities for disabled children in locations with a population below 40 000. We funded 36 therapeutic and integration activity projects that involved cooperation with the local community, the participation of volunteers, parents and assistants of disabled children.

Our Own Cartoon

The Friends of Chodzież Association invited disabled youth to take part in the Our Own Cartoon project. Participants produce a cartoon starring their own character. To prepare for the production well, they attend a number of workshops to become familiar with scriptwriting, scene setting, photography, animation, sound, and editing. The work on the cartoon will be documented using a camera. Stills from the process will be shown at a special exhibition, while a movie will be presented in the Chodzież Culture Center and passed on to the regional cable television and the local branch of the public television TVP3.

Donors Advised Funds

Apart from running its own grant programs, the Foundation also administers funds entrusted by companies and individuals. These funds, one-year, multi-year and perpetual, are created on the basis of donation agreements between a company or an individual donor and the Foundation. On the basis of the agreement the Foundation uses the entrusted funds to support projects, institutions and social initiatives that fall in the sphere of its program activity and the donor's interest.

Commercial Union Charitable Fund

For the past eleven years, the Foundation has been cooperating with the insurance company Commercial Union Poland, which has been providing us with donations to support the disabled, children and youth. In 2006, from the Commercial Union's funds we made 23 grants for integration and education of disabled children projects (see the list of grants of the Equal Opportunity Program – Rainbow Academy section). The Foundation manages also Commercial Union Charitable Fund used to finance endeavors identified by the donor, involving support for the sick and needy people, as well as support to educational projects (see the list of grants of the Equal Opportunity Program – Donors Advised Funds).

K Fund

In 2004, the Foundation received a donation of GBP 51 232 from a sponsor in Great Britain aimed to provide equal educational and cultural opportunities for children and youth. These resources were deposited in a three-year Fund which in 2006, pursuant to the will of the donor, was used to increase funds for scholarships for secondary school students operated in the framework of Equal Opportunity Program – Local Scholarship Programs.

M Fund

In 2002, thanks to a donation made to the Foundation by a private donor, an endowed donor advised Fund was established. Income generated by the Fund is annually spent for various forms of assistance to needy children. In 2006, M Fund earnings were used to finance or co-finance 13 grants for integration and education of disabled children projects (for the list of grants see Equal Opportunity – Rainbow Academy section). Moreover, pursuant to the wish of the M Fund founder, a part of the annual earnings on the investment of the Fund was allocated to the purposes identified by the donor involving support for sick children and children in need of care. In 2006, 26 grants were made of the value of PLN 36 000 (for the list of grants see Equal Opportunity Program – Donors Advised Funds).

Helen and Peter Maxwell Fund

Since 2004, the Foundation has been receiving an annual sum of USD 30 000 from Mr. and Mrs. Peter Maxwell from the United States for the Windows of Opportunity Program, aiming to provide equal educational opportunities for children and youth from Siedlce town and county. The program is run by the Hans Ch. Kofoed Association for Social Welfare, Rehabilitation and Social Reintegration in Siedlce, with the participation of Siedlce county and town local governments. In the framework of the program, financed in 2/3 from Maxwell Fund resources, an annual competition is organized for the purchase of computers for primary and junior high schools in Siedlce town and county. In 2006, thanks to the program, 12 schools received 57 computers, 38 of them were bought from the Maxwell Fund.

Beata Pawlak Fund

This fund was established from a donation of PLN 99 390,69 bequeathed by the deceased Beata Pawlak, Polish journalist and writer killed in a terrorist attack on Bali in 2002. As requested by the donor, the Fund awards an annual prize to an author of an article or publication on foreign cultures, religions and civilizations (for more see the Civil Society Program section).

Equal Opportunity – Local Scholarship Program was financed from 1% personal income tax payments donated to the Foundation (PLN 340 890), donations from Fund K set up by a private donor (PLN 224 110), the Open Society Institute's grant (PLN 41 000), donation by Nestle Poland (PLN 30 000) and donations from individuals (PLN 16 182). Equal Opportunity – Rainbow Academy Program was financed from a donation by Agora Foundation (PLN 100 000) Commercial Union Poland (PLN 85 000) and income from M Fund established by a private donor (PLN 84 440).

Program for Tolerance

The aim of this program designed for 2006–2008 is to support groups and organizations that strive to foster attitudes of tolerance and openness toward various racial, ethnic and religious differences and counteract intolerance and xenophobia.

In 2006 we ran two grantmaking schemes:

The Shared and the Different

We supported educational and cultural activities that recall history and rediscover roots of a multi-national Poland (especially local and Polish-Jewish history), protect common cultural heritage, disarm prejudices and stereotypes on other nations and religions. Through awarding grants for projects carried out mainly in provincial areas and targeting young people we want to assist their authors in the realization of their ideas and help to build a network of civic organizations and communities that attempt to deal with the problem of tolerance and multiculturalism attracting and engaging local people.

Mosaic: meeting – tolerance – acceptance

In order to get from Lodz Fabryczna to the meeting place for children from the Lodz district of Baluty – participants of the Mosaic project – one must walk through the streets that used to be the borders of the Lodz ghetto. And even though they take that route nearly every day, they found out of its history only during one of the first meetings organized as part of the project. A short lecture on the history of Lodz Jews, their festivities and customs, was supposed to help embrace this unfamiliar subject. They spread out a map of the ghetto on the park lawn. Their fingers traveled around the streets and squares, they were surprised to learn those had once been a part of the ghetto and today they are their meeting places, seen everyday from the windows of their homes. Then a workshop was organized: What does it mean to be different? Each of the participants was 'excluded' for some reason for one day – because of black eyes, fair hair, being too short or having too big feet. They could feel firsthand how stereotypes and prejudices are born. A trick was devised to encourage the group to rediscover their city: they journeyed through it with cameras, looking for traits of Jewish history, memorial plaques, buildings that survived the war, white marks on the pavement put there last year by Israeli and Polish youths in order to mark the ghetto borders. In the culture center, they put the pictures on the walls. Some were funny, some touching, others provoked comments and questions. The goal of the workshops was to open the group to diversity. The author of the project assumed that due to their common experience they will be more understanding and will not repeat senselessly what is said of Germans, Russians, or Jews in their homes, among their peers, or what can be read on Lodz walls. And it seems the program worked. One of the boys received an 'A' for his paper on the history of Jews, another stopped writing Widzew Club-Jewish Club on the walls, one of the girls wrote a school paper to condemn anti-Semitic attitudes, while another showed a film from the workshops in class and talked about the project.

In the first edition of the grant competition 128 organizations sent the letters of intent. The authors of 28 of them were invited to the two-days workshops in Warsaw. The workshops combined experience sharing and elaboration on the projects with art presentation and discussions with authors of projects of similar themes. Out of 28 project proposals qualified to the second stage of the competition 17 were awarded with grants. Apart from that, two other projects presented outside the two-stage grant competition procedure received grants from a separate reserve fund.

The partners of Foundation in the projects are: 'ę' Society for Creative Initiatives and Encounters Association for Education and Culture.

Preventing Intolerance

In 2006 we launched a call for proposals for organizations that monitor, document and denounce instances of intolerance, xenophobia and anti-Semitism as well as run research projects related to these problems. Our aim is to expand the volume and scope of initiatives that directly address all manifestations of intolerance and contribute to the development and increase of professionalism of organizations conducting such activities. Out of 33 letters of intent sent in the first stage of the competition we invited 8 organizations to develop full proposals. Eventually, 3 of them received two-year grants for projects to be implemented in 2007–2008. The grants will be used for research on the scale and instances of intolerance in the media and in other spheres of public life, documentation of the acts of racism-driven violence, dissemination of information regarding such acts and undertaking intervention and mobilizing public opinion to react and protest against them.

Program was financed from grants by the Ford Foundation and the Open Society Institute.

Legal Education Program

The goal of the program is to initiate and support projects aimed to increase public legal awareness, promote knowledge and information on legal issues, develop legal culture, and assist citizens in application of the legal tools to protect their rights. We assist organizations that provide specialized counsel to the most vulnerable or socially discriminated groups. We strive to promote knowledge about legal instruments that enable citizens to claim their rights and defend against all forms of abuse of power by the state and local authorities. We support initiatives that contribute to increase the efficiency of the judiciary system and enhance the legal education of the citizens.

During 2006, we focused primarily on supporting activities that enhance citizens access to legal knowledge and information. We continued our support to the Citizens Advice Bureaus, in which trained advisers provide free-of-charge information and legal counsel in the field of the penal law, the labor law, refugee laws, consumer laws, and patient rights to individuals who cannot afford professional legal assistance. We made core support grants to 27 Citizens Advice Bureaus. Moreover, we made grants to 25 organizations dealing with specialist legal advisory for discriminated groups and people who are in a difficult life situation.

Advice for free

Giving solid information and communicating it in a clear and easy way is the main goal of the Citizens Advice Bureau launched last week. People can come to the bureau at Mickiewicza Street 29 with private and official matters. – Those can be problems related to family, residential, employment, unemployment, welfare, or even detainment matters – said Wałbrzych Citizens Advice Bureau's director, Wanda Bielanska. The offer is addressed mainly to people who feel helpless in difficult life situations. They are unable to get through the complicated web of legal provisions. They do not know what rights they have, while legal counsel fees are too high. The Bureau's personnel guarantee impartiality and confidentiality of information. – We do not give our opinions on the client's actions. We apply the principle of the client's best interest – Bielanska said. In practice, it is as follows: people who would like to use Bureau's services are invited to a meeting with the consultant, who diagnoses the problem and after consultation with a professional presents all the possible solutions and their consequences to the client. It is the client who makes the final decision as to which of the solutions will be best. – Advice is based on the information system already operating at the Citizens Advice Bureaus, compliant with the regulations. We also use the knowledge of specialists in a given field. We cooperate with the County Labor Office, the City Family Aid Center, and the Social Insurance Board – explains the director. – We're convinced the Bureau will provide good service to the residents. Forty-two people have already benefited from our assistance – said Katarzyna Suszko, responsible for the first client contacts. Bureau was opened thanks to the financial support of the city of Wałbrzych. – We have also got funding from the Batory Foundation and the World Bank – said Wanda Bielańska. The Citizens' Rights Ombudsman has assumed its patronage over the Bureau.

Wiadomości Wałbrzyskie, Kłodzko, May 22, 2006

In 2006, we continued also our support for organizations running the Youth Civic Rights Academy that offers all-year courses for high school students on human and civic rights. Eight such organizations were given grants.

Last year, in cooperation with the Polish Section of the International Commission of Jurists and the Helsinki Foundation for Human Rights, we launched a project of public scrutiny of candidates to Constitutional Tribunal. We monitored the selection procedure, taking part in the sittings of the Parliamentary Justice and Human Rights Commission and analyzing the regulations and practice for the selection of judges. The project involved also: publication of the candidates' profiles compiled on the basis of available materials (CVs, academic achievements, public statements, published legal opinions, and a specially designed objective questionnaire) on the Internet site www.monitoringsewdziow.org.pl and their distribution to the media and among the parliamentarians, examination of the candidacies in the context of legal requirements for this position, organization of public hearings of the candidates with the participation of legal circles and media.

Tribunal likely paralyzed?

– There are no candidates and the deadline for submissions may be missed. In Ukraine, for 1,5 year the Parliament blocked the works of the Constitutional Tribunal by not appointing its judges. The situation could be dangerous if such an act of political manipulation took place in Poland – said Professor Andrzej Zoll during yesterday's conference at the Batory Foundation.

Three NGOs: Batory Foundation, Helsinki Foundation for Human Rights, and Polish Section of International Commission of Jurists announced they would monitor the process of selecting the judges of the Constitutional Tribunal. – There should be a public debate on the candidates for one of the most important organ in the state that monitors the legislative and judiciary authorities and keeps watch of civic rights – said Zbigniew Lasocik from the Commission of Jurists. – It may turn out the debate will be impossible if candidacies are submitted at the last minute – added Łukasz Bojarski of the Helsinki Foundation.

– Today we are sending letters to the speaker of the Parliament and chairpersons of parliamentary clubs with the request to present the candidates in order to allow the debate to take place – said Grzegorz Wiaderek of the Batory Foundation. What should the debate look like? – So far information on the candidates was reduced to their bios. We want to gather more information on the candidates, organize their public hearings during which journalists and others may ask their opinions on various important matters.

Gazeta Wyborcza, October 5, 2006

With an intent to help the activities aimed to improve the functioning of the judiciary we supported Association of Polish Judges Iustitia that implement the program Efficient court – efficient judge, which in a comprehensive way analyzes the work on an individual judge and prepares detailed recommendations for improvements.

Program was financed from a grant by the Open Society Institute.

Anti-Corruption Program

The goal of the program is to build the trust toward public institutions, to shape the social awareness and to make the public more sensitive to the various aspects and forms of corruption. We initiate and support the civic movement for increased transparency in public life and implement educational projects aimed at changing people's attitude toward corruption. We monitor the activities of authorities, both on the local and central levels, and promote legislative changes that ensure public participation in decision making, guarantee transparency of decision-making processes and protection from corruption practices.

In 2006 we realized the following projects:

Corruption barometer. Everyday corruption experiences of Poles report

Each year, the Foundation commissions a public opinion poll on the basis of which an indicator called the 'corruption barometer' is established. By asking the same questions every year we study changes in society's attitude towards the problem and scale of corruption. Together with the poll, we conduct in-depth research on corruption problems in specific aspects of social life. So far, these have concerned corruption in: everyday life, the public health service, local governments, business, the legislative process, the judiciary. In this year's seventh poll we supplemented the usual questions about most corrupt areas of public life and the ranking of corruption among social problems with the questions asked during first poll in November 2000. We were interested how much opinions on corruption and corrupt behavior have changed in Polish society.

The research recorded very significant changes in the social perception and attitudes. Over the past six years, respondents had pointed out politicians (operatives, councilors, parliamentarians) as the most corrupt social groups. In 2006, 53% of respondents pointed to a different group – healthcare workers. Another important change was a drop of declarations of the respondents' own involvement in corrupt practices: only 9% of those polled admitted to having given a bribe, while in previous years the percentage oscillated between 14 and 17%. The proportion of those who admitted to know someone accepting bribes dropped from 30% in 2000 to 18% in 2006 and the percentage of those who declared they were offered a bribe remained stable at 6–7%. However, there is a significant growth of the group of people for whom giving a bribe is a routine occurrence: in 2000 13% of those polled said they would give bribes five or more times a year, while in 2006 the proportion grew to 21%. The number of 'pragmatic' bribes, given to speed up or cheapen a given procedure, also rose from 51% to 56%. The proportion of those who said it was the only way to have things done dropped from 42% to 36%. Cash continues to be the dominant form of corruption (81%), with amounts staying at low levels. The report was posted on the Foundation's website: www.batory.org.pl/korupcja and was presented at the conference with the participation of sociologists and the media.

Monitoring of electoral promises

The project is run by the Anti-Corruption Coalition of NGOs which includes Helsinki Foundation for Human Rights, Social Communication Foundation, Center for Citizenship Education, School of Leaders Association and the Anti-Corruption Program of the Stefan Batory Foundation. The goal of the project that has been run since 2001 is to check how politicians elected in parliamentary elections fulfill their election promises regarding the fight against corruption and the work for the improvement of the standards of public life.

On September 22, 2006, we organized a conference evaluating the fulfillment of political parties' commitments to fight corruption made during the election campaign in 2005. During the conference members of the Anti-Corruption Coalition of NGOs presented the information on the projects of bills drafted in relation to the promises made by political parties of the current term of the Parliament and on violations of the law and ethical norms by representatives of political parties. The presentations were supplemented by a sociological report Social image of parliamentary parties on the issue of corruption and a discussion on the fulfillment of political parties commitments to fight corruption with the participation of: Mirostawa Grabowska, Ph.D. (Philosophy and Sociology Faculty of the Warsaw University, a board member of the Batory Foundation), Prof. Andrzej Zoll (Law Faculty of the Jagiellon University) and Michał Karnowski (commentator, Newsweek). A written opinion by Prof. Edmund Wnuk-Lipiński (Collegium Civitas) was also read out. The media patronage over the event was provided by TVN 24 and radio TOK FM.

Monitoring presidential election campaign finance

The goal of the monitoring effort was to control the sources of financing and the expenditures of election committees of presidential candidates in 2005. As part of the project, we analyzed the donations, public fundraisers, and expenditures of the committees on their media campaigns, propaganda materials, and election fests. After the election we checked the financial reports submitted to the State Electoral Commission. On May 19, 2006, we presented a report prepared in cooperation with the Institute of Public Affairs that summed up the monitoring of the financing of the presidential campaign. The report discussed in details the income and expenditures of election committees, the role of the State Electoral Commission and actions it took. One of the most important recommendations of the report was an urgent need to amend the presidential election laws. The presentation of the report was accompanied by the discussion of the advantages and disadvantages of the legal regulations in Poland and the practice of financing residential campaign. Representatives of the State Electoral Commission and election committees took part in the discussion. Several extensive press publications appeared on the basis of the report, describing irregularities in the last presidential campaign. The information included in the report was also used, sometimes improperly, by election committees that have been accusing one another of illegal campaign financing.

Unbelievable expenditures

The verification of the financial reports of the autumn presidential campaign showed that candidates for the highest office in the state and their aides hide and try to conceal expenses for the election fight. The Stefan Batory Foundation, which monitored the campaign, revealed the final report on the election finances. It shows the financial reports sent to the State Electoral Commission, which claim the committees have not exceeded the statutory limits of spending at 13,8 mln zlotys, are fictitious.

Gazeta Prawna, May 22, 2006

Monitoring local election campaign finances

In June 2006 we launched a project of monitoring local election campaign finances. Our aim was to enable public scrutiny of financing sources and spending of election committees behind the candidates in the local government elections. We monitored the sources of revenue of the election committees behind candidates for city mayors, in particular from the point of view of the usage of the public funding, as well as the analysis of donations and expenditures for media campaign, propaganda materials, and election fests. Fifteen individuals from NGOs and student organizations trained by the Foundation took part in the project. Their task was to monitor local election campaigns and to prepare and present the results of the monitoring in their localities. The initial results were presented in November and December.

Monitoring legislative procedure

The quality of legislation and the transparency of the legislative process are crucial for reducing corruption in Poland. In 2006, we decided to take advantage of the Lobbying Act adopted in 2005 which provides a legal and more formalized framework for all interested parties (civic organizations included) to participate in the legislative process as a representative of public interest, and monitor the legislative process of some of the bills discussed in the Parliament. Our goal is to make the legislation consider the public interest and to check whether or not the lobbying act encourages greater transparency of the legislative process and the protection from non-legal influences.

The project was launched in January 2006 by the seminar Lobbying and advocacy efforts of NGOs in the light of new legal regulations organized together with the Institute of Public Affairs. A legal opinion on the Lobbying Act in the legislative process and its influence on the situation of non-governmental organizations was presented by Prof. Marek Zubik. Opinions about the new legal regulations were presented by Jan Jakub Wygnański (Forum on Non-governmental Initiatives) and Artur Zawisza, MP (Law and Justice party). In the panel of experts: Tomasz Sadowski (Barka Foundation), Ewa Kulik-Bielińska (Donors Forum), Danuta Przywara (Helsinki Foundation for Human Rights) and Maciej Grabowski (Gdańsk Institute for Market Research) expressed their views on the new draft.

In 2006, we monitored the legislative process of five bills important from the point of view of increased transparency of public life. In line with the procedure adopted in the Lobbying Act we formulated our objections to the solutions proposed and submitted them to the legislator: the government or the Parliament. In several cases our representatives were invited to sittings of the Parliamentary subcommittees where they could present their opinions about the bills, as well as to committee sittings, where they could listened to the discussion of parliamentarians. Three of the bills that we monitored last year were passed by the Parliament: the Central Anti-Corruption Bureau Act, Civil Service Act submitted by MPs, and Financial Supervision Act submitted by the cabinet. Work on the two other cabinet bills on the change of the Public Procurement Act and on the Medical Products Registration Office will continue in 2007. At the end of the year we prepared a report on the project's realization which includes conclusions and recommendations for the changes of the Lobbying Act and the practice of the legislative process.

Medical Task Force

Since 2001 the Medical Task Force operating in the framework of the program has been undertaking actions for changes in the healthcare system and in the community of health care professionals. In April 2006, the Task Force organized a seminar devoted to the evaluation of experiences in the implementation of legal regulations pertaining to the organization of lists of patients waiting for underfunded medical services. The following individuals spoke of the experiences in the introduction and functioning of the newly adopted system of monitoring the waiting time: Jacek Grabowski (vice-president of the National Health Fund), Tomasz Gellert (director of the public administration, healthcare and foreigners rights protection unit of the Citizens' Rights Ombudsman), Wiktor Górecki (manager of the analytical unit of the Healthcare Information Center) and Andrzej Strug (Center for the Organization and Economics of the Healthcare Sector). The meeting was moderated by a member of the Medical Task Force, Adam Kozierkiewicz, the author of the civic initiative for the organization of lists of patients who wait for underfunded medical procedures.

In 2006, together with Rzeczpospolita daily, the monthly Zdrowie and the Internet portal Eskulap we organized a survey on the legal and organizational solutions that stimulate corrupt behavior. The Task Force members opined about a dozen legal documents sent to them for consultation by the Health Ministry. They submitted critical remarks on several of them, including on the Act on the Medical Products Registration Office.

Legal counsel

Since 2000, we have been providing a legal counseling for people who have encountered corruption. In 2006, we received 130 cases and dealt with over half of them. Actions taken by us included: 5 interventions to prosecutor's offices calling for the initiation of preparatory or case supervision proceedings, 20 interventions to courts and other public institutions and official bodies, 12 statements, positions and motions to receive information under the public information regulations, 8 replies to questions on the legal status or the legality of situations presented by journalists, private individuals and local government officers. Several dozen individuals who reported problems that did not fall within the scope of our activity were directed to University Students' Legal Clinics.

Seminar on anti-corruption agencies in Europe

On May 12, 2006, we held a seminar during which several specialists from Europe discussed the structure, tasks, and functioning of anti-corruption agencies operating in selected European countries. The panelists included: Jean-Pierre Buebo of French Central Office for Corruption Prevention, Povilas Malakauskas, director of Lithuanian Special Investigative Office, and Mariusz Kamiński, Polish cabinet plenipotentiary for the development of the program aimed at fighting irregularities in public offices. The foreign guests described the legal, organizational and financial structure of their agencies, the system of their supervision and control, as well as the rights and duties of their officers. They also shared their experience on the agencies achievements and failures. Mariusz Kaminski presented the framework of the Central Anti-Corruption Office project that was supposed to be established by the Parliament later this year. In the discussion that followed the panelists' presentations the participants agreed that the fight against corruption could not be limited to police action. Foreign experts in particular stressed the importance of anti-corruption education.

Program was financed from a grant by the Open Society Institute and the United States Embassy.

International Cooperation Program

The aim of the program is to support active EU policies towards new neighbors in the East, strengthen civil society in Central and Eastern Europe, initiate as well as participate in the debate on international issues in Poland and on the European forum.

In 2006, the situation in the countries of Eastern Europe was increasingly diverse, as demonstrated by the elections in Belarus and Ukraine. On the one hand, we witnessed presidential elections in Belarus that took place amid violations of the fundamental rules of democracy. On the other hand, we had fair parliamentary elections in Ukraine that demonstrated stability of the democratic changes initiated by the Orange Revolution. The picture of the situation in Eastern Europe was completed by growing autocratic tendencies in Russia that manifested themselves i.a. by the new law on non-governmental organizations that limited the freedom of their operations. The foreign policy of Russia, both toward CIS countries and the European Union, was increasingly assertive. Inside the European Union a crisis of the constitutional treaty continued. In many member states a resistance toward further enlargement of the Community has been growing.

Trying to address the above challenges, we focused our efforts in 2006 on supporting pro-democratic tendencies in the countries of our eastern neighbors and on advocating for a common EU policy toward those countries based on the concept of a friendly border and good neighborhood. Such were the aims of the projects of experience sharing with Ukrainian centers of European information and representatives of the Ukrainian public administration, the Polish-German expert seminar on the European Neighborhood Policy, conferences, discussions and meetings in several capitals of Europe during which we presented recommendations and propositions for a common EU policy toward Belarus, as well as actions geared towards the liberalization of the visa policy of the Community toward citizens of Eastern Europe. An important addition to our actions in this field was the recruitment of independent observers and the monitoring of elections in Belarus, Ukraine, and Tajikistan.

In view of the deteriorating official relations between Poland and Russia, the hostile rhetoric of the administrations of both countries, and the rapid decline of the number of informal contacts and cooperation of both societies, we decided to undertake activities that may contribute to the enlivening of interest in Russia in wider circles of the Polish society and to avert the return of old bias and stereotypes. With this in mind, we organized two international conferences: on modern Russia, with the participation of outstanding Russian and Western experts on Russian affairs, and on Russian-Ukrainian relations and their influence on the policy of Ukraine toward the Union, with the participation of politicians and experts from Russia, Poland, and Ukraine. The latter was accompanied by workshops for young political scientists from the three countries. A third international conference, devoted to the relations with our Western neighbor, presented the directions of German domestic and foreign policy in the context of the changes after the 2005 election and discussion in the European Union.

Our activities in 2006 were carried out in the framework of the following projects:

New European Union and Ukraine

The aim of the project we had run since 2002 was to evaluate relations between the European Union and Ukraine, analyze the influence EU enlargement on these relations and recommend possible strategies and solutions for the relations between the new EU and Ukraine.

We continued our efforts aimed to promote the idea of European integration in Ukraine. With financial support from the Foreign Ministry and in cooperation with the Office of the Committee for European Integration we carried out a series of seminars, conferences, study visits and meetings under the common name Ukraine on the path toward EU. We organized an eight-day study visit in Poland for employees of Ukrainian centers of European information and a three-day conference in Kyiv for representatives of 30 centers on European education. During the study visit our guests took part in a three-day training session on the most important aspects of functioning of the EU, run by employees of the Office of the Committee for European Integration. They also attended a series of meetings with Polish organizations experienced in implementation of European information and educational projects, including regional centers for European information in Białystok and Płock. In a conference organized in cooperation with the Ukrainian Renaissance Foundation in Kyiv 30 representatives of Ukrainian European information centers learnt about Polish experiences in running EU information campaigns and about strategic planning of European information centers' operations.

Another element of this activity focused on experience sharing between representatives of Polish and Ukrainian public administration in charge of Judiciary and Internal Affairs and Competition Polic. During two meetings in Warsaw and one in Kyiv we organized trainings for public officers as well as consultations of legal acts pertaining to harmonization of Ukrainian law to acquis communautaire in the above fields. In October, a group of officers from Ukraine met their Polish colleagues in the Ministries of Internal Affairs and Administration, Foreign Affairs, Economy, Finance, and the Office for the Committee of European Integration, Foreigners and Repatriation Office, and the Headquarters of the Border Guard. As a result of the meetings, a set of recommendations were developed for the implementation of the EU-Ukraine Action Plan. The recommendations, written and published in the Ukrainian version, were distributed through Ukrainian participants of the project to all interested parties in Kyiv. In November, during two conferences in Kyiv, the participants of the project discussed Polish experiences of harmonizing the rules of public aid to the requirements of the EU laws and on Polish migration policy. The last meeting summarizing the project was held in Warsaw in mid-December.

Moreover, in the framework of New European Union and Ukraine project we organized the following:

Friendly EU border

In the framework of the project carried out since 2002 we have been undertaking activities aimed at liberalizing the visa policy of Poland and other EU member states towards citizens of Eastern Europe and at improving the standards of border services on the EU's eastern frontier. Together with a group of non-governmental organizations from Poland, Russia, Ukraine and Belarus we conducted monitoring of border crossings of the enlarged EU to register the behavior of border crossing officers toward citizens from outside the Community (2002–2003), the monitoring of the Polish visa policy (2003–2004) and the monitoring of visa issuing procedures by EU member states to citizens of Eastern Europe (2005–2006). We published the results of the monitoring effort in reports distributed in Poland, EU states, Ukraine, Belarus, and Russia. The findings of the reports and the resulting recommendations are used to advocate the implementation of policy of easy access and affordable entry visas for EU Eastern neighbors.

In 2006 we completed the monitoring effort of the visa policy of eight selected countries of the European Union (Belgium, Finland, France, Lithuania, Germany, Poland, the Czech Republic, and Britain) toward citizens of Belarus, Ukraine, Russia and Moldova. Based on the analysis of surveys performed in the autumn of 2005 among 1300 applicants requesting visas at 31 EU consulates in Chisinau, Kyiv, Minsk and Moscow we prepared a report Visa Policies of the European Union Member States with the comparative study of the visa policies of the individual states of the Schengen area and the detailed description of the difficulties encountered by visa applicants. We also produced a policy paper with recommendations by experts, lawyers and human rights activists on the most desirable, friendly and consistent model of EU visa policy. The report was completed just as the EU began discussions of the revision of some of the Schengen legislation (Common Consular Instructions) and became a solid basis for the advocacy efforts aimed at the facilitation of visa procedures and practices of EU countries toward citizens of Eastern Europe. Conclusions and recommendations from the research were disseminated at the public conferences and seminars, also among experts, politicians and officers in charge of formulation and implementation of the visa policy. Both publications were presented at the following venues: April 12 at the Batory Foundation, June 9 at the Challenge project conference in Paris, June 21 at a conference in Prague, June 26 in Minsk, July 3 in Kyiv, June 4 in Simferopol, July 20 in Odessa, July 21 in Lviv, July 25 in Chisinau, September 7 at the Economic Forum in Krynica, October 6 at the Challenge project conference in Brussels, November 28 at the European Parliament in Brussels, and December 1 at the European Academy in Trier, Germany. Some of our recommendations were reflected in the new regulations of the European Visa Policy, the so-called Community Code on Visas.

The project's participants included: Collegium Civitas and the Helsinki Foundation for Human Rights from Warsaw, the Institute for Public Policy from Moldova, the Moscow Bureau for the Defense of Human Rights, the Ukrainian Center for Peace and Conversion of Foreign Policy, as well as experts and academics from the European Union: Jovita Pranevičiute of the Vilnius University, Timo Hellenberg, Ph.D., from Aleksanteri Institute in Finland, Ondrej Soukup of the Association for International Affairs in the Czech Republic, and a group of experts from the Federal Trust in Britain. We carried out advocacy efforts for the facilitation of the EU's visa procedures together with the project's partners: the Moldavian Institute for Public Policy, the Ukrainian Center for Peace and Conversion of Foreign Policy, and an NGO from Belarus.

International election monitoring

Observation missions are an important factor for the development of democracy, greater transparency of the public life and the strengthening of the role of the civil society. The Batory Foundation has for years been engaged in sending election monitors, recruiting i.a. polling supervisors for OSCE missions and taking part in the preparation of the Polish Observation Mission for the presidential election in Ukraine in 2004.

In 2006, in cooperation with the Polish Foreign Ministry, we recruited observers for the OSCE mission to the presidential elections in Belarus and presidential elections in Ukraine, as well as for the observation mission for the elections in Tajikistan. It was our ambition to make the recruitment process as transparent and effective as possible, opening it for candidates from outside the small circle of the public administration, in particular for young ideological volunteers, and basing it on objective selection criteria. Among 500 candidates who applied in response to the nationwide ads we selected 40 short-term and four long-term observers for the monitoring of Belarus elections. Another 60 people from the ranking group were invited to take part in the OSCE mission for parliamentary elections in Ukraine.

In the autumn of 2006, from a grant by Foreign Ministry we organized our own observation mission for presidential elections in Tajikistan (November 6, 2006). The mission was the Polish contribution to the realization of OSCE member obligations (monitoring of the development of democracy in member states). Election and pre-election observation was carried out in two Tajik cities – Dushanbe and Khujand – and in their municipal areas. Twenty-two monitors took part in the mission, including two long-term observers.

Our observers reported repeated violations of the adopted election ordinance including badly prepared lists of voters, proxy or family voting, inappropriate voter identification, improper ballot issuance procedures, inaccurate vote counts and wrong filling of protocols by election commissions. We summarized the monitoring experience with the report in Polish, English and Russian, published on the Batory Foundation website.

In 2006 we published the following titles:

- Polish Observation Mission. Tajikistan Presidential Elections 6 November 2006 – Preliminary Assessment
- Polish Observation Mission. Tajikistan Presidential Elections 6 November 2006 – Final Assessment

Displaced cultural property

For the past four years we have been operating a project devoted to missing or displaced cultural assets, which in the result of wars and border shifts were moved to the territory of other states. We wanted to stimulate the public debate on this controversial problem that has not been discussed for years, and to lead to the development of a common position of Central and Eastern European countries on the matter. In 2006, we published a recommendation on the Polish-Ukrainian cooperation in the field of cultural artifacts and claims, and organized two public debates on the common heritage of Poland and Ukraine. We also organized an international conference on the problem of displaced cultural property in Central Europe in the years 2000–2006 and published a volume on the property restitution and cultural assets in Poland and the situation in neighboring countries.

Partnership projects

In 2006 we participated in the following projects implemented in coalition with other organizations:

Polish NGO Abroad

Since 2001 the Foundation has been involved in the work of a coalition of Polish NGOs operating outside Poland. The goals of the Polish NGO Abroad group include: exchange of information, cooperation with public administration, participation in shaping and implementing Polish aid policy, cooperation with related associations in other states, dissemination of information about the activity of Polish NGOs Abroad and garnering public support for their activities.

In 2006, the Foreign Group that comprises more than 40 organizations cooperated with the Foreign Affairs Ministry on the development of the strategy for the Polish development aid policy for 2007–2011 and continued its information effort on the work of Polish NGOs outside the country by publishing a special CD-ROM. It also helped NGOs from Bulgaria and Romania create similar platforms by sharing Poland's experiences.

Project Challenge

Since November 2004, the Foundation has participated in the international project Challenge. The Changing Landscape of Liberty and Security in Europe, financed from the EU's Sixth Framework Program. The project is carried out by a consortium of 21 partner organizations cooperating in 17 thematic areas devoted to various security policy aspects and their influence on civic freedoms. Project-related activities include scientific research and promotional campaigns. In its framework, the Batory Foundation conducts promotional activities of the EU border monitoring project and offers expert analysis on migration issues. During a seminar organized by the Utrecht University on June 2, 2006, we presented a paper on institutional cooperation on border issues in Poland. As part of the conference organized by Center for International Studies and Research (CERI) in Paris on June 8–9, 2006, we presented the results of the our EU border monitoring project. # Citizens in Action Program

The program aims to support democratic changes and the development of civil society in Belarus and Ukraine. We cooperate with non-governmental organizations from Belarus and Ukraine that support grass-root initiatives, engage in building partnership between non-governmental organizations and public administration sectors and undertake civic education activities. The program involves grantmaking to Belarusian and Ukrainian non-governmental organizations, selected on the basis of open competitions or individually invited to apply for grants. Our grantees are also invited to participate in study visits, meetings and trainings organized in Belarus, Ukraine, Poland and other countries.

Regional partners competition

Our aim is to build a network of non-governmental organizations in Belarus and Ukraine engaged in supporting local civic initiatives and developing partnership between non-governmental organizations and private and public institutions. In years 2004-2006 we ran three open competitions for the program's regional partners addressed to organizations operating locally in different regions of Belarus and Ukraine. Within the competition we offered organizations interested in becoming the program's partners one and two-year grants for program activity and institutional development. With the part of the grants designated for program activity our partners launch small grants competitions for grass-root initiatives, organize information and legal counseling for citizens, engage in protection and execution of individual rights, provide civic education of young people, set up local civic activity centers, undertake efforts to secure access to information and transparency of the government administration, implement strategies aimed to boost the growth of philanthropy. Funds for institutional development are used to enhance staff, board and volunteers' skills, streamline organization's management and operations.

In the effect of all three grant competitions, 55 regional partners were selected (14 from Belarus and 41 from Ukraine). The last, third partners recruitment took place in 2006. This time the call for proposals was addressed to the organization operating in 5 regions of Belarus: Hrodna, Gomel, Minsk, Mogilev, Vitebsk and 18 regions of Ukraine: Kherson, Khmelnytsky, Cherkassy, Chernihiv, Dnipropetrovsk, Kyiv, Kirovograd, Lviv, Lugansk, Mykolayiv, Odessa, Poltava, Sumy, Ternopil, Volyn, Zakarpattia, Zaporozhye and Krym. Out of 115 organizations that sent in the letters of intent 31 were invited to the consultative-information meeting in Warsaw designed for presentation of the goals and rules of the program and individual consultations with program's coordinators. The meeting was accompanied by the financial-accounting training and a conference on different aspects of the third sector operation in Poland, Belarus and Ukraine, attended by about 70 participants, experts and representatives of NGOs from the three countries. Next, each of the applicant organizations were visited by external experts who audited its system of financial management and accounting. On the basis of final proposals submitted by the organizations and the results of financial audit the competition jury made up of representatives of grant-making organization operating in Belarus and Ukraine, selected 22 new program's partners.

Representatives and local partners from all three competitions took part in 2 study visits in Poland and 6 trainings devoted to experience sharing and development of good practices in organization of small grant competitions, financial management and bookkeeping in NGOs. They participated also in 7 meetings aimed to discuss jointly identified problems: cooperation with local government, public administration and business, operation of Citizens Advice Bureaus, work with small informal groups, evaluation of projects' effectiveness, cooperation with volunteers, safety of the Internet users.

Advocacy

The goal of this grant scheme is to promote the idea of advocacy as an efficient tool of joint action to solve important social problems and protect the rights of individual citizens or social groups. We offer grants to Belarusian and Ukrainian organizations involved in different advocacy efforts, from grass-root initiatives to nationwide campaign. Grants are made primarily in open competitions, though individual organizations may also be invited to submit applications. We also offer trainings that prepare organizations to undertake advocacy efforts.

In 2006, we developed a concept and program of the advocacy training and selected a partner organization to coordinate and organize the course. Trainers include experts from Ukraine and consultants from Central and Eastern Europe. The trainings are addressed to all regional program partners as well as the grantees of our Credibility and partnership competition of 2005 in which 54 organizations received grants for promotion of their activity in the local communities and among their potential local and regional partners. The main aim of the training is to learn about the methods and instruments of advocacy and the rules and principles of planning effective advocacy campaigns. We will particularly focus on developing the skills of free use of advocacy instruments in carrying out grass-root initiatives which enable the organizations to participate in the processes of shaping and monitoring the implementation of local politics in the domains they have competence and expertise.

Civic education

As part of support of civic and European education we made grants to 5 organizations from Ukraine and Belarus to carry out projects of development of informal initiatives in the field of European education for young people, promotion of European integration and third sector research. In co-operation with International Renaissance Foundation we co-financed also two open grant competitions for local education and information initiatives on EU and development of training programs concerning European integration. Out of 81 applications submitted in the competition 14 received grants.

Program was financed from the Ford Foundation's grant.

Community Initiatives Partnership Program

The aim of the program is to develop cross-border cooperation of non-governmental organizations from Poland and Germany with the organizations of our Eastern neighbors: Belarus, Ukraine and Russia (Kaliningrad District). In 2004–2005 the Program was limited to the cooperation with organizations from Kaliningrad District. In 2006 its outreach was expanded to include Belarus and Ukraine. The Program is run in cooperation with Robert Bosch Foundation. Our partner in Ukraine is PAUCI Foundation from Kyiv.

In 2006, we offered grants for the implementation of trilateral cooperation projects that serve to support local and regional community initiatives in Ukraine, Belarus and Kaliningrad District, integrate these initiatives into transboundary cooperation and promote model social activities aimed to improve quality of life in the Kaliningrad District and enhance civic activity and public life engagement in Ukraine and Belarus. The grants were awarded on a competitive basis, with an international jury of experts from the countries of program's operations supervising the two-tier application assessment procedure. The applicants – partner organizations from at least three countries – developed jointly a letter of intent which presented the project's concept and contained short profiles of all organizations involved in its implementation. The authors of most interesting concepts were invited to take part in trilateral seminars that took place in September 2006 in Nasutowo (for partners from Poland, Germany and Ukraine) and Rynia (for partners from Poland, Germany, Belarus and Kaliningrad District). At these meetings they discussed and elaborated their projects, using advice of external experts and Batory and Bosch Foundations' program coordinators. Full proposals submitted by the organizations accepted to the second stage of the competition were assessed by an international panel made up of experts from Poland, Germany and the Kaliningrad District as well as program officers of both funding partners. In Poland – Germany – Ukraine competition 57 letters of intent were submitted, 16 of them were accepted to the second stage. From among 15 that submitted full proposals 8 were selected for funding. In Poland – Germany – Belarus competition out of 8 letters of intent 6 qualified to the second stage with the Jury selecting eventually 4 for funding. The implementation of projects awarded will start in 2007.

As part of six projects implemented in 2006 from grants awarded in the second edition of Poland – Germany – Kaliningrad District competition, several hundred young people from the Kaliningrad District got involved in voluntary work for the benefit of their communities. A particularly important element of the projects carried out that year was promotion of voluntarism, still underdeveloped in the Kaliningrad District. For many young people this was the first experience of this type of activity. In several schools in the District volunteer centers were established which will continue to operate also after the projects' completion.

Join in

– Four days in Poland, six in Kaliningrad, nineteen people and uncountable impressions – that is how Martin Adams, one of five German volunteers, sums up Join in project. The goal of the project – designed as a series of happenings in the streets of three Kaliningrad District's cities – was to promote voluntarism. A group of 15 experienced volunteers from Poland, Germany and Kaliningrad District decided to convey in a unconventional way the idea of voluntary work and why it is worth to engage in the work for the benefit of others. In the first part of the project a group of volunteers met in Olsztyn to work, under the supervision of a professional drama instructor, on pantomima performance – the center of the happening. The performance was to tell the story of transformation which undergo both the person who is helped and the helper himself. On the fourth day the group came to Kaliningrad District and embarked on a six day tour to present their happening. Volunteers visited three cities: Cherniahovsk, Svetlogorsk and Kaliningrad. They acted out different pantomima scenes winding up the performance with a live banner: Volunteers – join in! Although passers-by treated young artists with slight detachment, there were some, especially young, who got interested and came to the group to ask for a leaflet and more information. Organizers hope that the project contributed not only to promotion of the idea of voluntary works among the citizens of the District but also encourages others to use the potential of happening and street performance as an effective tool in civic campaigns. Time will show if they were right.

Program was financed by grants from the Open Society Institute and the Robert Bosch Foundation.

East-East Program

This is a network program operating since 1991 in all countries of Eastern and Central Europe, Turkey, Central Asia and Mongolia with an aim to promote international cooperation across the region and to help build and strengthen open societies in these countries. Program activities are coordinated by the Open Society Institute's East-East Network Program that approves and funds all grants awarded for projects implemented in particular countries. In Poland the East-East Program makes grants for international projects implemented within Polish territory and for the participation of representatives of Polish organizations in projects carried out in other countries of the region.

In 2006, we made grants for 32 projects implemented in Poland, including several long-term initiatives developed in close collaboration with foreign partners. Most projects implemented by Polish institutions targeted our eastern neighbors, especially Ukraine. Their subject matter was quite diverse and concerned i.a. local government – NGO cooperation, regional development, voluntarism, assistance to marginalized groups, entrepreneurship, combating human trafficking. This year a relatively high number of multilateral projects were implemented with the participation of organizations from several countries of Central and Eastern Europe. They concerned restorative justice, educational reform, national minorities issues and problems of the disabled.

Workers of the Foundation against Women's Trafficking La Strada were educating women on the Polish-Ukrainian border in Korczowa and Medyka on how not to fall a victim of women trafficking. The La Strada activists took part in the action as part of the project Have a Happy Journey, financed by the Batory Foundation. The main goal was to give women, especially Ukrainian citizens, information on how to avoid threats coming from various criminal groups that look for sex business workers. The La Strada volunteers, together with members of a similar organization Zhenskie Perspektyvy from Ukraine, distributed leaflets with information on the conditions of work and stay in our country, possible threats and ways of avoiding them, to women entering Poland. The action was accompanied by the training for border guards from the Bieszczady Border Guard Unit. They were instructed on how they can efficiently get involved in the prevention of women trafficking. La Strada took similar action this week on Polish-Ukrainian border crossings in Dorohusk and Zosin.

Nowiny Gazeta Codzienna, Rzeszów, July 27, 2006

As part of the project European Integration 11 organizations submitted the descriptions of projects of cooperation between new European Union members, candidates, and potential candidates for members with their eastern neighbors. We invited one organization to submit a complete application, and 10 were rejected because of the lack of compliance with the program's priorities.

A total of 153 Polish experts took part in 41 projects run by the foundations from other countries of the region – Ukraine, Lithuania, the Czech Republic, Romania, and Georgia. Poles were most often invited to take part in projects relating to local government, children's rights, the rights of disabled individuals, crime specialists, local development, the future of EU enlargement and regional cooperation.

Russians learn from Gdańsk residents

Officers from Kaliningrad arrived in Gdańsk yesterday to see how residential buildings are managed here. Jacek Łapiński, the head of the Gdańsk Communal Real Properties Bureau, took the guests to Gradowa Mountain. – From this place we can see the panorama of the entire city and much of our properties – he explained. – We will also organize theoretical classes, during which our Russian colleagues will learn about our legal system and find out what the residential community is. Such an institution does not exist in their country. Our Russian colleagues will also visit several Gdańsk homes managed by the residential communities. The visit of the local government officials from the East is part of the program organized by the Batory Foundation and the Common Knowledge Educational Association.

Study visit of Russian organizations to Poland

On June 26–30, 2006, we organized a five-day visit in Poland for 24 representatives of organizations from Russia. The aim of the visit was to prepare the ground for contacts and the start of cooperation between Polish and Russian NGOs. On the first day of the visit we organized an open seminar Development and challenges. Third sector in Poland and Russia with some 70 participants from Polish and Russian organizations. The situation of the third sector in Poland and Russia and its challenges were discussed by: Piotr Frączak of the Civil Society Development Foundation, Jakub Boratyński of the Batory Foundation, Vyacheslav Bakhmin, consultant of the Mott Foundation in Russia, and Liubov Alenicheva of the Social Information Agency. In the second panel Ewa Kulik-Bielińska of the Donors' Forum and the Batory Foundation, Fedor Loginov of the Garant Center for the Development of NGOs and Konstantin Shishka of the New Eurasia Foundation talked about the dialog and cooperation between the third sector and public authorities in both countries. For two consecutive days workshops were taking place on the development of the local community and the help to emigrants and refugees. Participants also visited 25 organizations from Warsaw, Słubice, Łódź, Kraków, Białystok, Gdynia, Gdańsk, and Nidzica. The result of the meeting was the increase of the number of projects with the participation of Russian organizations filed to the East-East Program by Polish organizations (six bilateral and two multilateral projects).

Program was financed by the Open Society Institute.

Regional Alcohol and Drug Program

The Program is responsible for training and workshops in the field of the prophylaxis and therapy of alcoholism and drug addiction for both addicts and their families in Central and Eastern Europe, Central Asia, and the countries of the South Caucasus. Starting in 2002, the program also runs seminars on the prevention of domestic abuse – one of the most widespread social pathologies in the countries of the region. In 2006, in the framework of regional cooperation, we continued training of penitentiary specialists working in the field of the therapy of addicts in penitentiary facilities (Atlantis program). Such programs already operate in Kyrgyzstan, Kazakhstan, Lithuania, Latvia, and several locations in Russia. The program is also being deployed in Georgia, Armenia, Ukraine, and Bulgaria. Since 2005, we have developed cooperation with drug addiction specialists and the AA community in Siberia and the east of Russia. One of the results of the work is the center for the therapy of addictions Seven Roads Crossing Center in Angarsk. Thanks to our efforts, the beginnings of therapy programs cooperating with AA and Al-Anon were established in Irkutsk, Ulan Ude, Khabarovsk, Nakhodka, Vladivostok, and Petropavlovsk-Kamchatsky. In 2006 we began to create a network of non-government organizations in the Russian Federation that are interested in the work for the protection of families. Funds received to help this initiative were channeled to support the creation of psychological hotlines, consultation desks for victims of abuse, sociotherapy centers for underprivileged children etc.

In November 2006 we organized the seminar in Warsaw Addiction, co-addiction, domestic violence for the media in the region. The meeting's program comprised lectures, discussions, workshops and panels aimed to familiarize journalists with the issue. Last year, we published two issues of the ArkA bulletin (in Russian and Bulgarian). Translations of Polish books on addiction were also published in Russian and Bulgarian, while the library of scripts in Russian was enlarged by three new titles. The publications are also distributed free of charge among the participants of our training.

Program was financed from a grant of the Open Society Institute.

Opinion of the independent auditor

For the Stefan Batory Foundation's Council

We have audited the accompanying financial statements of Stefan Batory Foundation, seated in Warsaw, Sapieżyńska 10 A ('Foundation'), consisting of the introduction to the financial statements, the balance sheet as at 31 December 2006 with total assets and total liabilities and equity of PLN 159 554 359,31; the profit and loss account for the year then ended with a net profit of PLN 20 636 444,38; and the supplementary information and explanations.

The management of the Foundation is responsible for the accuracy of the accounting records and the true and fair presentation of the financial statements prepared in accordance with the accounting standards as set out in the Polish Accounting Act dated 29 September 1994 (Official Journal from 2002, No. 76, item 694 with amendments) and the executive regulations promulgated thereunder and other respective regulations. Said responsibility includes: design, implementation and maintenance of internal controls related to the drafting as well as true and fair presentation of financial statements free of intentional irregularities or errors, selection and application of appropriate accounting principles as well as accounting estimates appropriate to existing circumstances.

Our responsibility is to audit and express an opinion on the true and fair presentation of the financial statements and whether the financial statements are derived from properly maintained accounting records. We conducted our audit in accordance with section 7 of the Polish Accounting Act dated 29 September 1994, the professional standards established by the Polish National Council of Certified Auditors and International Standards on Auditing as promulgated by the International Federation of Accountants.

These regulations require us to proceed ethically and to plan and conduct the audit in a manner so as to attain a reasonable certainty that the financial statements and the underlying accounting records are free of material irregularities.

The audit consists of procedures that aim to cull audit records concerning amounts and information disclosed in the financial statements. Selection of audit procedures depends on our evaluation, including an estimate of the risk of the probability of material irregularities in the financial statements due to intentional acts or errors. In conducting an evaluation of this risk, we take into account the internal controls related to drafting as well as the true and fair presentation of the financial statements for the purpose of planning procedures appropriate to the circumstances, not for the purpose of expressing an opinion on the efficacy of the internal control within the entity. The audit also evaluates the appropriateness of applied accounting principles, justifiability of estimates performed by the Board of Directors as well as an evaluation of the general presentation of the financial statements. In our opinion, the audit records we obtained constitute a sufficient and appropriate basis for us to express an audit opinion.

In our opinion, the financial statements of the Stefan Batory Foundation present fairly, in all material aspects, the financial position of the Foundation as at 31 December 2006 and the results of its operations for the year then ended in accordance with the accounting standards as set out in the Polish Accounting Act dated 29 September 1994, and the executive regulations promulgated thereunder, and are in compliance with the respective laws and regulations, and the provisions of the Foundation's statute that apply to the Foundation's financial statements and have been prepared from properly maintained accounting records.

As required under the Polish Accounting Act dated 29 September 1994 we also report that the Report on the Foundation's activities includes the information required by article 12 of the Act on Foundations dated 6 April 1984 (Official Journal from 1991, No. 46, item 203 with amendments) and the information is consistent with the financial statements.
